

Help us make some JOY-ful noise

and renew this home where lives are renewed

A safe place for women and children to recover from domestic violence — that was the need Providence Network filled when we opened Joy House in 2000. Today, with that need even greater, we continue to provide a safe haven, and offer holistic services in a family-like environment that fosters hope, rejuvenation and a sense of belonging. Our licensed counselors and 24/7 live-in staff mentor residents in their transition from crisis to stability by focusing on self-sufficiency through effective parenting, healthy coping skills, and job training.

After 21 years and countless families served, this 120-year-old property is in great need of its own TLC

INSIDE ▶ modernize to an open floor plan for community meals, group counseling, celebrations, and other healthy, relationship-building activities. Replace tired furniture, peeling paint, and worn-out flooring. Add functional storage solutions to organize the plethora of highchairs, strollers, and car seats.

OUTSIDE ▶ convert the crumbling concrete side lot into a safe, inviting space to garden, relax, and play. The therapeutic qualities of this environment will promote healthy social interaction, cultivate healing relationships between mother and child, and encourage quiet personal reflection.
